5th Annual Therapist Symposium

Management of Rheumatoid Arthritis

Dr. Jo ADAMS has worked as an occupational therapist in clinical and management roles before joining the School of Health Professions and Rehabilitation Sciences of University of Southampton in 1995.

Dr. Jo's MSc was within Health and Social policy and her doctoral studies focused around the measurement of hand function in early rheumatoid arthritis (RA) and examining the clinical effectiveness of static hand splinting in RA.

Dr. Jo is a member of the National Association of Rheumatology Occupational Therapists; the British Association of Hand Therapists and the British Health Professionals in Rheumatology. She has an honorary position with the Arthritis Research Council, working on the Education Strategy Group and the Publications Working party as well the Allied Health Professions Committee. She has contributed to national policy guidelines with the Arthritis Research Musculoskeletal Alliance and contributed towards electronic fact sheets for the National Library for Health.

In this symposium, Dr. Jo will share her extensive experience in the management of rheumatoid arthritis. The topic are “Conservative therapy for Rheumatoid arthritis – current practice” and “A meta-analysis of the effectiveness of PIPJ implant”.
